GET READY TO WORK:

VANWEST CO-OP

WHAT IS CO-OP?

Co-op is the abbreviation of Cooperative Education, also known as a type of learning education system that integrates classroom-based knowledge and practical work experience, gained through 'paid work placement'. The program aims to cultivate student's skills and help them launch an outstanding career path in an industry related to their field.

WHAT STUDENTS WILL GET:

- Certificate or Diploma from VanWest College
- A credential / certificate from an institute related to the program
- Professional English resume and interview skills
- Reference letter(s) from co-op work placement

VANWEST CO-OP:

- Since 2016 when our vocational programs were launched, we have successfully placed all of our students into a Co-op job placement.
- 30% of our graduates are consistently hired by their Co-op companies.
- All Co-op job placements are paid, and the wages are above BC's minimum wage.
- On-Campus Co-op department will fully support students in finding a co-op placement.
- Outside the campus, students continue to receive comprehensive support through our VanWest Ready to Work Instagram account. The Co-op Department regularly shares job opportunities, job fair information, testimonials from former co-op students, important announcements, and other valuable resources to assist and guide students.
- The co-op job placements will give students a great opportunity to integrate academic studies with related employment experience. The placements fully depend on a student's ability, work experience, and interviews.
- In the Work Preparation course students will learn how to create an effective resume and a professional cover letter, gain interview techniques, and build networking.
- Students are eligible to work part-time (up to 24 hours a week) during academic study semesters.

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

This program provides students with foundational background in supply chain management (SCM). Building upon the students' general baccalaureate academic experience, the program begins with a solid foundation in communications and business. The program then goes on to deliver introductory courses in the 3 main areas of SCM: procurement, operations and logistics; before students embark on their Co-op work term. Throughout the program emphasis is placed on the inter-connective nature of SCM, the use of analytics to inform decision-making, and on acquiring knowledge and skills identified through industry consultation.

CO-OP

VanWest College's Co-op has a strong system in place and a solid foundation of host company partnerships across various industries; a system that equips students with the adequate knowledge and skills that help them succeed in getting work placement in an English environment. Students receive first-hand experience in how job-hunting works in Canada through various activities that are offered by the Co-op department such as on-campus activities, and information sessions etc. Depending on our student needs, the Co-op department will provide regular counselling and training until students secure their placements. Students will be able to perform multifaceted business functions in occupational areas such as purchasing, operations, logistics and customer and information services, financial support and project coordination.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

BUS 101 Cross-Cultural Communication

This highly interactive, face-to-face course provides an understanding of the interpersonal communication skills required to develop constructive relationships in the multicultural workplace. This course explores foundational theory. Sources of interpersonal difference and barriers to understanding are examined.

BUS 103 Marketing Essentials

This introductory course examines the application, management, and trends of marketing in the Canadian and global marketplace. Students will explore the primary elements of the Marketing mix (Product, Price, Promotion, and Place); how to utilize the elements of the Marketing mix to create value for the customer, and how to satisfy consumer needs.

BUS 105 Principles of Management

This course covers the basic concepts of the management process: planning, organizing, staffing, leading, and controlling. Students will develop an overview of the functional areas of business and an understanding of the complex world in which organizational decisions are made. Emphasis is placed on how functional areas are integrated to achieve goals.

BUS 107 Business Correspondence

This “hands-on” course covers communication theory, aspects of written communication, and introduces students to public speaking. On completion of this course, students will be able to: package thoughts clearly, provide clearer communication of both written and verbal messages, and write error free business-related documents.

BUS 109 Workplace Preparation

This course covers basic skills involved in finding and securing employment. The topics in this course all relate to job search strategies, including creating an effective resume, writing a professional cover letter, practicing interview techniques, networking, using the Internet to job search, and understanding labour services.

BUS 114 Introduction to Accounting

This course will introduce the concepts of accounting within the context of business in a Canadian environment. Students develop the ability to prepare and analyze the financial statements of public corporations. Topics include accounting as an information system; introduction to income measure; the accounting cycle; cash and financial statements.

BUS 116 Project Management

This course will present the essential skills students need to make effective contributions and to have an immediate impact on the completion of projects. Coverage of the latest business developments and challenges acquaint students with issues such as project constraints, stakeholder issues, and the project charter.

BUS 123 Macroeconomics

This course introduces students to the fundamental terminology, concepts and theories of macroeconomics with an emphasis on international dynamics. Course topics include demand, supply, economic growth, inflation, markets and their impacts on international trade and globalization.

BUS 130 Excel for Business Analytics

This course introduces students to Microsoft Excel and its use in business analytics. Taught in our computer lab, the course presents foundational and intermediate level tools used frequently in business. Topics include creating/modifying worksheets, manipulating data using formulas, functions, and Pivot Tables, and displaying information using sorting, charting, and exporting tools. Experiential rather than lecture-based learning will be the focus.

SCM 140 Procurement & Supply Management

This course introduces students to the roles, policies, procedures, organizational structures and management involved in purchasing and supply management. The course will present purchasing activities in the context of organizational profitability and broader sustainability and corporate social responsibility effects. Methods for supplier evaluation, selection and management will also be covered.

SCM 150 Operations & Process Management

This course introduces students to operations issues in supply chain management. Topics include the basics of collaborative planning, forecasting, replenishment, enterprise resource planning models, lean thinking, Six Sigma and other statistical process control techniques.

SCM 160 Logistics in Supply Chain Management

This course introduces students to basic logistical concepts, structures and processes utilized in the distribution and inventory of goods and services. Financial, organizational, managerial, and strategic approaches will be covered. The use of information technologies to increase efficiency and profitability will be introduced.

SCM 125 Co-op Placement

As an integral part of the Supply Chain Management Co-op Diploma, the Co-op is designed not only to provide a period of productive employment in the Canadian workplace, but also enables students to apply classroom theory and skills to that employment. Students will experience real-world business practices and gain new perspectives from their employment. Students will be able to perform multifaceted business functions in occupational areas such as purchasing, operations, logistics and customer and information services, financial support, and project coordination. Students must submit a reflective task assignment after completion of required Co-op hours.

EC 1000 History, Philosophies, and Foundations of ECE

This course delves deep into the origins, history, and principles of Early Childhood Education, focusing on both Canadian and international influences. It equips students with essential foundations for success in today's Early Childhood Education field. Topics include quality in Early Learning and Child Care, the role of Early Childhood Educators, culturally diverse programming, and support for Indigenous children and families. The course covers current practices and helps students develop a personal philosophy for child, environment, and ECE role in early learning and child care settings.

EC 1100 Understanding Child Growth and Development

It is imperative that Early Childhood Educators understand child growth and development as a basic prerequisite for effectively working with children, families, and the community. Upon completion of this course, students will have a clear understanding of historic and current theoretical approaches to child growth and development. This includes an understanding that child growth and development is part of an on-going lifespan, from conception into adulthood. They will look closely at social, emotional, physical, cognitive, and language development patterns. Students will also become versed in the genetic and environmental factors which influence individual growth and development. They will learn about indicators of development delays or concerns and associated risks. Students will learn about historical and contemporary issues that may affect Indigenous children and families so they can reflect on the effect it could have on growth and development. Students will learn the skills needed to practice various objective observation methods. They will learn the purpose of daily observations related to growth and development. Having a holistic image of the child will prepare students to work in early learning and child care environments. Students will use reflective practice skills to think critically about their role as educators in early learning and child care environments.

EC 1200 Positive Approaches to Guiding Children's Behaviour

Early Childhood Educators use a variety of methods to ensure children have positive learning and environment experiences in child care centres. ECEs provide guidance and support to children learning how to interact with their peers and their early learning and care environment. Students who complete this course will explore the ECE's role in using positive guidance strategies with children, creating supportive environments, encouraging peer relationships and self-esteem, and how to work with children who have challenging behaviours. Students will learn the importance of observation in managing behaviours. They will learn how to redirect attention when possible and create an environment that naturally encourages positive interactions. Respecting inclusion and diversity are essential in early learning and child care programs. Students will learn how to collaborate with families, co-workers, and community supports. They will consider the historical and contemporary impacts on Indigenous children and families and how they need to ensure their guidance strategies respect the whole child. They will work with children, families, coworkers, and the community to ensure children's individual needs are met. They will learn and reflect on practical positive guidance strategies. They will reflect on their own personality characteristics, communication strategies, and expectations in relation to their approach for guiding behaviours.

EC 1300 Health, Safety, and Nutrition in ECE

Early learning and child care environments are required to have policies and procedures for health, safety, and nutrition. Students enrolled in this course will learn the standards that are required based on the provincial Child Care Licensing Regulations. Students will learn how to ensure policies and procedures reflect the requirements and meet the needs of children, families, ECEs, and community services. This includes teaching universal precautions, handwashing, and how to prevent the spread of germs. Students will learn about documenting and reporting illnesses and injuries and enforcing licensing requirement for child care and child protection. They will learn the foundations for creating an environment that reflects the early learning and child care policies and procedures. They will learn about preventing and managing illnesses in child care environments. Students will also learn about nutritional needs for children and how to prepare basic snacks and meals. Students will learn about individual child care plans for children who require additional supports. They will learn about administering medication and using specialized equipment in early learning and child care centres. An emphasis will be placed on how culture and identity impacts personal wellness. Students will refer to the Indigenous medicine wheel as a tool for reflecting on individual self-awareness. Students will learn the importance of supporting and celebrating diverse cultures and individuals. The students will learn about personal wellness and how to ensure the early learning and child care environment encourages children to learn about their own health, safety, nutrition, and wellness.

EC 1400 Interpersonal Communication and Professionalism in ECE

Early Childhood Educators must develop professional communications skills in order to establish a quality early learning and child care environment. Students who complete this course will learn how to communicate and collaborate with families, co-workers, and the community. They will reflect on their communication style and learn how to meet the needs of others to promote effective communication. Students will learn what it means to be a professional in the field of early learning and child care. They will learn about the importance of professional growth and opportunities. They will learn how to advocate for high-quality, accessible, culturally diverse, and inclusive early learning and child care programs. Students will also learn about community resources available for children and families and how to share the information to families.

EC 1500 Program Planning and Development in ECE

Early Childhood Educators must participate in program planning and development. Students who complete this course will learn the skills required to successfully plan, implement, and evaluate a developmentally appropriate program that meets the various observed needs of children. This includes planning programs that reflect and respect diversity and inclusion, as well as planning and implementing a range of activities that foster development of the whole child. Students will learn how to ensure children are exposed to learning experiences that promote growth and development. They will learn the skills required to effectively plan indoor and outdoor play environments that meet the developmental needs of children and ensure their health, safety, and well-being. They will learn the importance of program planning and its impact on children, families, and the community. Students will learn how to ensure Indigenous children and families are reflected in their program planning. They will learn how to design an early learning and child care program from a holistic perspective. The students will reflect on how different philosophies and theories impact the development of a program. The students will consider how their philosophy is reflected in the program. They will look at child development needs to ensure children are able to actively participate in the program.

Students will learn how to document children's learning and create pedagogical narrations that promote learning and exploration based on the children's interests, questions, and explorations. Students will be encouraged to create activities that reflect an emergent curriculum based on the interests of the children.

EC 1900 ECE Curriculum 4 - Creative Expression

Creative expression through art and dramatic play unlocks a wealth of developmental opportunities for children. Students who complete this course will learn how to guide and enrich children's experiences through planning and implementing a range of art and dramatic play activities. Students will learn various teaching methods for introducing the arts in early learning and child care environments. They will learn how to ensure the environment and activities are developmentally appropriate, culturally diverse, and inclusive. Students will learn that activities for children should be open-ended and be about the process, and not the product. They will consider creative exploration as a part of their personal philosophy and reflect on how it impacts child growth and development.

EC 3001 / 3002 / 3003 Early Childhood Education Practicum

During the practicums, students practice the theory they have learned in their ECE Basic classes. The practicums have an emphasis on practicing observation methods, social interactions with children, building and maintaining partnerships with families and community services, and working as a team. While on practicum, the students will learn how to engage in classroom observations and interactive experiences with children, families and program staff. Students are expected to read and understand all classroom policies and procedures. Students will work alongside a certified ECE and will observe how the program operates daily. The students will create and implement activity plans that are emergent or based on the early learning and child care program philosophy. They will use various observation methods to record how the children are participating in the activities. After the activities are complete, the student will reflect on the experience and how they could extend children's learning. They will create and implement their practicum goals and they will reflect on them during the seminar and with their Practicum Supervisor from the College. Students will learn the importance of reflective practice in early learning and child care environments.

While attending seminar, students will reflect on their field experience and consider the competencies that they may have found challenging. They will review pedagogical narratives and how they could extend children's learning with new activities and experiences.

The first practicum consists of 160 hours of practical experience in an early learning and child care environment, and seminar at VanWest College. Students will spend 152 hours at a licensed early learning and child care centre and 8 hours of seminar at VanWest College. The students will have a 4-hour seminar at the College.
